The device market is also dominated by a few big players who are not looking to disrupt themselves. Read more1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a projection type display device having a plurality of light source units. 2. Description of the Related Art A projection type display device has become widespread, in which a light valve that modulates light emitted from a light source unit with image signals according to the image information to form an optical image, is disposed on a projection lens, light is projected on a screen on the other side of the projection lens through the projection lens, the optical image formed on the screen is enlarged and displayed. In recent years, projection type display devices have been used in public facilities such as theaters and lecture halls, that have previously been used by large scale computer centers. Also, projection type display devices have come to be used in home theaters, etc., where the number of seats is small. In a projection type display device, generally, light emitted from a light source unit is condensed by a light-condensing optical system. The image formed is enlarged and projected on a screen of about 40 inches (

The present invention pertains to an oscillating mechanism for a magnetic head in a disk file device and more particularly to a pivotal vane which reduces oscillation of the head. FIG. 1 shows a side view of a conventional disk drive. A spindle motor 2 rotates a disk 1 at a predetermined speed. A pivot arm 3, on which a slider 7 is mounted, pivots around a bearing 5 while the disk 1 is rotated. A voice coil motor 4 drives the pivot arm 3 with a permanent magnet 6, forming a voice coil motor, attached to the pivot arm 3. A ramp 8 is mounted to the base 4 of the motor 4. A load/unload device 9 is mounted in the ramp 8 for the slider 7 and also for a leader 9a. The load/unload device 9 is driven by a solenoid 10, to position the slider 7 on the disk 1. Then, the solenoid 10 is deactivated. A pivot member 11 is formed to guide the pivot arm 3 as the slider 7 climbs onto the ramp 8. The pivot member 11 pivots around a bearing 13 by a pressure of a first springs 12a and 12b. The slider 7 is reciprocated by the pivot member 11 in a direction indicated by an arrow. The slider 7 is positioned by a second spring 15. The force of the first springs 12a and 12b must be greater than the force of the second spring 15 to counterbalance the force of the voice coil motor 4. The pivoting of the slider 7 is usually limited by stiffness of the springs 12a and 12b. In some cases, a voice coil motor 4 is mounted to an outer side of the base 4. The pivoting of the slider 7 is effected by the permanent magnet 6, instead of the voice coil motor 4, and the springs 12a and 12b are omitted. In this case, the pivoting of the slider 7 is effected by the magnetic attraction between the permanent magnet 6 and the pivot member 11. The force of the permanent magnet 6 is greater than the force of the springs 12a and 12b, so the stiffness of the springs is not a problem. FIG. 2 shows a side view of the first springs 12a and 12b of the FIG. 1. The first springs 12a and 12b in FIG. 2 are expanded to allow a clearer illustration. The solenoid 10 is mounted to the bearing 13 in a suspended state and the bearing 13 is connected to the slanted portion
