This content is free to play and the full version is available for $0.99 on the PlayStation Store. Ducks are invading! The ducks have started playing tricks to get closer to the toast. Can you survive the invasions of the sorcerers' ducks by yourself? The ducks can disguise themselves as different objects in this toy box dimension, so they might be easily missed. Players can use two different weapons, each one resembling some of the objects/places featured in the DLC. Players can see the arrow on top of their player-character screen, and these arrows can be used to guide their ducks to where they need to be. When a duck is pushed off-screen, it can be revived by its player-character with a checkpoint. Players have the ability to fight ducks with different accessories that resemble the skins included in this DLC. "The father of five girls, including my daughter, says his wife, who suffers from chronic illness and has to use a wheelchair, was left in no doubt that she had been born to suffer. "She was told she would never have children and was instead given a cross-wires or jinx cast so she couldn't turn over. "She had to be smothered to make her stop jiggling around in her chair. She was induced at 36 weeks after three separate miscarriages. "I have just about had it with doctors and their treatment of the disabled. It is a total insult to the very people they are supposed to be caring for." Mr O'Callaghan is currently on a visit to his wife and two of his children at home in Musgaffney, Co Cork. He was preparing to drive her to her physiotherapy appointment in Dublin when his phone rang. He was told the call was from the Irish Family Planning Association. "They have been trying to contact me because they want to offer me a gift-wrapped package of a negative pregnancy test," he said. "I told them no, I do not accept gifts in front of my children. I said I want my five daughters to be able to hold in their hands a result that they have themselves brought home for me. "When I asked if they knew a doctor with an open mind, they put me on hold and a minute later a woman came on the phone. She had a hard Irish accent and said she wanted to
