Many users might think that using WPA2 on their router can prevent this attack by requiring the WPA/WPA2 password to be entered every time the router is restarted. However Wifiphisher (our apt-get tool) provides very easy way to do this. If you use WPA2 on your router for your network, and you have plugged in a device that you would like to hack, then plug the device into your laptop or workstation and on the laptop or workstation you will have to type in the WPA/WPA2 password for the Wifiphisher tool. The tool will store the WPA2 password in a file on your laptop or workstation. Thus it works even if the router is not restarted. If your router is not restarted then you will need to use the Wifi Password reset option, in your router configuration to reset the WPA/WPA2 password for your network and then plug in the device that you want to hack. This is because our Wifiphisher tool that will generate a WPA/WPA2 password for the Wifiphisher tool to decrypt the traffic and obtain the real SSID and passkey. You will need to do this for all the devices that you want to hack. You can login to the Wifiphisher tool, and modify the list of devices, adding the WPA/WPA2 password of the routers and then click save.
